Dr. MP Roy

India and Singapore have resolved to elevate their bilateral Strategic Partnership to a Comprehensive Strategic Partnership, marking a significant enhancement of the existing Comprehensive Economic Cooperation Agreement (CECA) established in 2005.

Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi's visit to Singapore on 4th September 2024 underscored India's resolve to deepen and expand its strategic engagement with Singapore, a key diplomatic ally in Southeast Asia. The visit highlighted the multifaceted ties between the two nations, characterised by deep-rooted historical connections, robust economic collaboration and a mutual commitment to regional stability. Singapore's pivotal role in India's Act East policy underscores its strategic importance in advancing New Delhi's broader geopolitical objectives in the region.

Strategic MoUs Strengthening Bilateral Ties

This was Prime Minister Shri Modi's fifth visit to Singapore. He met with newly appointed President Mr. Thaman Shanmugaratnam and Prime Minister Mr. Lawrence Wong. Discussions focused on deepening bilateral cooperation in a multitude of forward-looking areas, including technology, sustainability, digitalisation and advanced manufacturing. The two sides witnessed the signing of four significant Memoranda of Understanding (MoUs) to elevate the relationship further:

MoU on Digitalisation and Technology Cooperation

The MoU on digital technologies focuses on cutting-edge areas such as Artificial Intelligence (AI), data security and cybersecurity. These are critical fields, especially as the world becomes more interconnected and vulnerable to digital threats. The cooperation in these areas ensures that both countries can bolster their digital infrastructure, fortify cybersecurity frameworks and improve data protection standards, which are essential for secure digital transactions and communication.

The two countries have already successfully collaborated facilitating interoperability between India's Unified Payments Interface (UPI) and Singapore's PayNow system, which has made cross-border financial transactions faster, easier and more secure. This integration exemplifies how fintech collaboration can reduce barriers to trade and business, enabling smoother financial exchanges between countries. Building on this foundation, both nations are looking to expand their cooperation in fintech, blockchain technologies and digital banking, which will strengthen their positions as leaders in the global digital economy. These advancements not only fuel economic growth but also create jobs, boost innovation and promote inclusivity in financial systems.

Magnetic materials are the backbone of advanced technologies, powering everything from electric motors and generators to medical devices, consumer electronics and cell phones. Despite their critical role, India has long depended on imports, risking supply chain disruptions and geopolitical tensions. In the next 25 years, achieving self-reliance in producing these high-performance magnets is crucial for India to secure its technological and industrial future. By developing these materials domestically, a dynamic start-up, Ashvini Rare Earth Pvt. Ltd. (AREPL), is ensuring a stable supply, boosting economic resilience and positioning India as a global leader in innovation and manufacturing. This shift is essential for building a robust and self-sufficient nation.

Focused on developing and manufacturing advanced magnetic materials, this start-up is addressing the critical challenge of producing high-performance magnets rigorously.

Shri Vikram Dhoot, MD of the Start-up said, "We address the challenges of producing high-performance magnets including

Idea to Start-up: The Journey

The inspiration for the enterprise emerged in the 1980s from India's reliance on foreign technologies for high-performance magnets. Late Shri Ajit Dhoot sought to address this dependence by founding Ashvini Group to develop and manufacture magnets domestically. Starting in a small garage, Ashvini Group created India's first bonded ferrite magnet in 1988 and later expanded to innovate further.

By 1990, Ashvini Magnets was established to meet rising demand, leading to break-throughs like India's first bonded rare earth magnet in 1994. In 1998, Ashvini Magnets Pvt Ltd marked a significant milestone.

In 2020, Ashvini Rare Earth Pvt. Ltd. (AREPL) was founded to focus on manufacturing rare earth metals and high-performance NdFeB magnets.

AREPL made notable progress by signing agreements with Bhabha Atomic Research Centre (BARC) and Indian Rare Earths Limited (IREL) in 2021. This collaboration aims to produce NdPr metal from Indian oxides. With specialised training in Molten Salt Electrolysis, AREPL is enhancing its manufacturing processes and product quality. The start-up aims to achieve a production capacity of 500 metric tonnes of rare earth metals and 1200 metric tonnes of NdFeB magnets annually, establish a "Mine to Magnet" production process and implement advanced recycling techniques for sustainability.

India's Magnetic Revolution: Pioneering the Path to Self-Reliance generously, which are crucial for various high-tech applications, including renewable energy, automotive, consumer electronics and more. Our goal is to reduce dependency on imports and strengthen India's position in the global magnet industry," he added. "Our efforts have been further recognised by the Ministry of Mines (MoM), which awarded us a grant of Rs 1.5 crore under the S&T PRISM Scheme. This financial support will significantly accelerate our projects and support our mission to reduce dependency on imports."

Ashvini Magnets uses cutting-edge technologies, including specialised powder manufacturing, injection moulding with abrasive materials and automated quality control. These processes ensure precision and consistency in magnet production.

A Memorandum of Agreement with Bhabha Atomic Research Centre (BARC) and Indian Rare Earths Limited (IREL) aims to produce NdPr metal from Indian resources, boosting India's self-sufficiency in high-performance magnets.

AREPL's partnerships with research institutions like ARCI support the development of advanced Strontium Hexaferrite powders, enhancing magnet technology for various applications, including motors and sensors.

Use-Cases of Magnets Produced by AREPL

Magnetisation technologies with very high currents, above 20,000 amps, are used to create strong and precise magnetic fields. These technologies can produce magnets with many tiny magnetic poles, even in a small space. For example, a magnet with 72 poles can be made on a magnet that is just 50 mm in outer diameter. This allows the magnet to have very detailed and specific magnetic properties, useful in applications like motors, sensors and other high-precision devices.

- Ferrite powders available for Bonded Magnets made from local raw oxides are used to produce magnets.
- PrNd metal, a metal manufactured from the PrNd oxide which is used in high-performance magnets, improving strength and stability for applications in electronics, motors and renewable energy technologies.
- PrNd fluoride, a compound manufactured from PrNd Oxide and utilised for mass scale manufacturing of PrNd metal.

Positive Impact

Ashvini Magnets has robustly advanced various sectors through its innovative products, providing import substitutes, enhancing energy efficiency and reducing carbon footprints. High-performance magnets used in BLDC motors for ceiling fans contribute to energy conservation in line with the National Mission for Enhanced Energy Efficiency. The company has supplied magnets for circuit breakers to GE in Hungary, HVAC motors to Japanese OEMs and for use by leading automotive firms in the USA and Japan.

In the automotive sector, Ashvini Magnets' development of indigenised magnets for dashboards and wheel speed sensors has been highly beneficial. Specially designed magnets for flow meters that eliminate impellers have led to more efficient fluid measurement. In the defence sector, critical magnetic assemblies have been developed to ensure the safety and functionality of essential applications.

Shri Vikram asserts, "Despite fierce competition from Chinese manufacturers and low-cost imports, we have emerged as leaders in India's bonded magnets industry. Our innovations have enabled us to produce previously unavailable products, overcoming challenges and establishing ourselves as industry pioneers."

Opportunities for Youth: The burgeoning Indian magnet

Mine to Magnet

AREPL aims to master the production process of "Mine to Magnet." The process can be understood in the following points:

Mining: This process is not done by AREPL, but raw materials are procured from IREL (Indian Rare Earths Limited). According to the Government of India, only selected companies have the license to mine these raw materials. IREL specialises in mining, separation and extraction of rare earths in the form of their oxides in a series of steps, ensuring a stable and high-quality supply of raw materials essential for start-up's production process.

Raw Material (Oxide or Fluoride Form) to NdPr Metal: The raw materials in the form of oxides are processed to extract NdPr (Neodymium-Praseodymium) metal through advanced techniques. This involves refining and purifying the raw materials to obtain high-purity NdPr metal, which is a crucial component for high-performance magnets. The process includes steps to ensure the removal of impurities and achieve the desired purity levels.

Metal to Alloy Powder (NdFeB Powders): The NdPr metal is then converted into NdFeB (Neodymium-Iron-Boron) alloy powder. This involves melting the NdPr metal along with iron and boron to form an alloy. The molten alloy is rapidly cooled to produce the NdFeB powders. These powders are critical for producing magnets with high energy density and excellent magnetic properties. Advanced techniques like strip casting are used to produce uniform and high-quality alloy powders.

Alloy Powders to Magnet Blocks: The alloy powders are processed to form magnet blocks through a series of steps, including pressing and sintering. In the pressing stage, the alloy powders are compacted into the desired shape using presses. The compacted powders are then subjected to high-temperature sintering, which involves heating them in a controlled atmosphere to bond the particles together, resulting in dense and solid magnet blocks with superior magnetic properties.

Cutting Operations on Magnet Blocks for Manufacturing Sintered NdFeB Magnets:

The magnet blocks undergo precise cutting operations to manufacture sintered NdFeB magnets. This involves slicing, grinding and shaping the blocks into the required dimensions and geometries. Advanced machining techniques, such as wire EDM (Electrical Discharge Machining) and precision grinding, are used to ensure the final magnets meet the stringent quality and performance standards required for high-tech applications.

Each stage involves various technologies and techniques to ensure efficiency and quality.

market, with an annual turnover of Rs. 2000 crore, presents vast opportunities. As industries adopt advanced technologies reliant on high-performance magnets, there is a significant need for optimised production processes. The magnetic materials sector offers diverse career prospects for electrical and mechanical engineers, electronics and automation experts, power electronics specialists and professionals in powder metallurgy, material science, chemical engineering and polymer science.

Need for Self-Reliance: Shri Ayush emphasises, "Our initiatives are aligned with the Aparna Bharat initiative, striving to enhance India's self-reliance in key sectors. We are committed to advancing research and development, fostering innovation and supporting India's industrial and sustainability goals." By focusing on innovation and quality, Ashvini Magnets aims to significantly impact the industry and contribute to a technologically advanced and self-reliant India.

Cultural rights affirm the inherent dignity and equality of every one of us. The rights ensure that an individual can fully participate and contribute to the society. An empowered person adds value to the ocean of humanity. He becomes an agent of change and can contribute in social, economic and other fields after being self-sufficient.

The International Day of Sign Languages is celebrated annually on September 23rd. This day was chosen to commemorate the establishment of the World Federation of the Deaf in 1951. This day highlights the importance of sign language in ensuring the full realisation of the human rights of deaf individuals. The aim is to raise awareness about the importance of sign language in the full realisation of the human rights of people who are deaf. The International Day of Sign Languages is a unique opportunity to support and protect the linguistic identity and cultural diversity of all deaf people and other sign language users. Sign languages are fully-fledged natural languages, structurally distinct from spoken languages. There are over 300 different sign languages used by more than 70 million deaf people worldwide. India has been actively celebrating this day to raise awareness about the linguistic and cultural diversity of the Deaf community.

To build an inclusive society in which equal opportunities are provided for the growth and development of Persons with Disabilities so that they can lead productive, safe and dignified lives, the Government of India established on September 28, 2015 the Indian Sign Language Research and Training Center which plays a significant role in promoting and preserving Indian Sign Language. The Mission of the Center is to empower Persons with Disabilities through its various Acts/Institutions/Organizations and Schemes for rehabilitation and to create an enabling environment that provides such persons with equal opportunities, protection of their rights and enables them to participate as independent and productive members of society. The theme for the International Day of Sign Languages 2024 is "A World Where Deaf People Everywhere Can Sign Anywhere". The theme emphasizes the importance of ensuring that deaf individuals can use sign language freely and comfortably in all aspects of life, promoting inclusivity and accessibility.

Hearing Impairments in India

Prevalence: According to the National Programme for Prevention and Control of Deafness (NPPCD), around 63 million people in India suffer from some form of hearing impairment. This includes various degrees of hearing loss, from mild to profound. Hearing impairment issue causes a significant social and economic impact. It is reflected in productivity loss, managing treatment and aids require funds and restricts the economic growth by the potential contributor due to hindrance in their education and training.

Visual Impairments in India

Prevalence:
- According to the National Programme for Control of Blindness & Visual Impairment (NPCB&VI), approximately 12 million people in India are visually impaired. This includes various levels of visual impairment, from moderate to severe and blindness.
Impact:
- Social Impact: Individuals with visual impairments may face challenges in education and employment, affecting their social inclusion.
- Financial Impact: Visual impairments can lead to loss of productivity, increased healthcare costs, and reduced quality of life.

It is high time that the potential of the persons with certain deficiencies is understood and acted upon, giving meaning to the full ambit of our national life. Enabling the persons with disabilities in actualisation of their fundamental freedoms and ensuring that they could participate in cultural and educational avenues is very significant for a substantive democracy.

In this context, films play an enabling, powerful and effective role in the information and communication sector. Including accessibility features in cinema is vital for individuals with disabilities for their full participation in the cultural and social experiences.

The Indian film industry, one of the largest globally in scale and potential, has historically faced challenges in catering to audiences with disabilities. However, recent regulatory and technological advancements signal a growing commitment to inclusivity. This article explores the evolution of accessibility features for hearing and visually impaired people in Indian cinema, detailing regulatory frameworks, implementation schedules, practical examples and ongoing challenges.

Regulatory Landscape

The Rights of Persons with Disabilities (RPWD) Act came into force from 10th April, 2017. It replaced the earlier Act of 1995. The objective of the RPWD Act is to ensure that all persons with disabilities can lead their lives with dignity, without discrimination and with equal opportunities. The Act lays down specific provisions to uphold such rights. It incorporates the rights of persons with disabilities covered under the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (UNCRPD), to which India is a signatory.

Legislative Framework

The Government of India has taken several steps to enhance accessibility in public spaces, including cinema:

1. Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act, 2016: This landmark legislation mandates universal access across various sectors. Specifically, Sections 29 and 42 of the Act requires appropriate governments to ensure that persons with disabilities have access to information and communication services, including films. The provisions of the enabling Act emphasize the importance of making public exhibitions of films accessible to individuals with hearing and visual impairments.

2. Harmonised Guidelines for Barrier-Free Built Environments: Issued by the Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs, Government of India, these guidelines lay out accessibility standards for public buildings, including cinema halls. They address architectural barriers and provide standards for accessible design, ensuring that new cinema constructions and renovations include features such as ramps, accessible seating and appropriate signage. The space needs to be made barrier free and harmonised as per the needs of the persons with impairments.

3. Central Board of Film Certification (CBFC) Guidelines: The CBFC guidelines require films certified for theatrical release to include accessibility features like Closed Captions (CC), Open Captions (OC) and Audio Descriptions (AD). These guidelines are intended to ensure that films are accessible to a wider audience, including those with hearing and visual impairments.

The focus of these guidelines is not only on the content but also on the information, assistive devices and other support needed by persons with disabilities to enjoy films in cinema theatres.

Implementation Schedule

The applicants for the purpose of certification of films for theatrical release shall arrange the access-service for their films as per the following schedule:

- All feature films that are to be certified in more than one language would be required to provide at least one accessibility feature each for the hearing impaired and visually impaired, i.e. Closed Captions (CC), Open Captions (OC) and Audio Descriptions (AD), with effect from 15-09-2024.
- Feature films submitted for consideration in the National Film Awards and in the Indian Panorama Section of the International Film Festival of India, IFFI Goa and other Film Festivals organised by Ministry of Information & Broadcasting shall mandatorily include closed captioning and audio description with effect from 1 January, 2025.
- All other Feature Films being certified through CBFC including the trailers and trailers and meant for theatrical release (digital feature films), would be required to mandatorily provide accessibility features for CC/OC & AD, from 2 years from the date of issue of these guidelines.

This phased approach allows for gradual implementation, giving filmmakers and cinema operators time to adapt to the new requirements.

Accessibility Standards for Hearing Impaired

For the hearing impaired, key accessibility features in cinema include:

- Subtitles and Captions (CC/OC): The inclusion of subtitles is crucial for making films accessible to individuals who are deaf or hard of hearing. Recent trends show a gradual increase in films being released with subtitles, particularly on streaming platforms. For example, Bollywood films like "Andhadhun" have embraced subtitles, catering to a wider audience.
- Indian Sign Language (ISL) Interpretation: Although rare, sign language interpretation has started gaining acceptance. Initiatives by organisations such as the National Institute of Speech and Hearing (NISH) have aimed to include Indian Sign Language in film screenings and promotional events. For instance, special screenings with sign language interpretation have been conducted for films like "Dangal".

Accessibility Standards for Visually Impaired

- Audio Description: Audio description services are indispensable for making visual content accessible. This involves a narrator describing visual elements during natural pauses in the film. Notable examples include the audio-described versions of films shown at the Mumbai Film Festival and initiatives by the National Association for the Blind (NAB). Films like "Tumbbad" have been praised for their audio description efforts.
- Tactile and Braille Materials: While less common, tactile materials such as braille scripts or touchable models of scenes are emerging tools. The development of these materials remains in its infancy, with few cinemas offering such options. However, there are initiatives in educational settings and film festivals exploring their potential.

Technological Solutions and the Role of Exhibitors

1. Mobile Apps: The Filmmakers would strive to integrate the CC/OC & AD for the feature film in any suitable software application to extend the accessibility feature in any usual screening of the film in the theatres, which can be used through the personal device of the user. This feature would be completely non-invasive.

2. Assistive Devices: Cinemas can use various assistive devices to display captions and descriptions. Options include mirror captions, smart glasses, closed caption stands and displays placed below the screen. These devices help ensure that accessibility features are visible and functional for all viewers.

3. Content Descriptors: Producers are required to prominently display content descriptors for accessible features on certified films, including trailers and trailers. This practice helps viewers identify films with accessibility features and ensures they are aware of the available options.

4. Action Plans for Cinemas: Cinema operators are required to develop annual action plans to enhance accessibility. These plans should include provisions for at least 2 to 5 pieces of equipment per 200 seats for CC and AD. Cinema halls must also consider holding special screenings on demand to accommodate accessibility needs.

Public Awareness

- The appropriate Government shall take steps for public awareness of film accessibility needs and the measures that have been devised to encourage accessibility. The government is responsible for promoting public awareness about the accessibility features of films and the measures taken to improve accessibility. This includes disseminating information about accessible film through various channels.
- The film industry should consider the provision of accessibility features in films as a measure leading to increase in their audience and box office revenues and therefore a justification for incurring the additional cost on accessibility features.

- Industry bodies and associations will take effective steps to publicise and create awareness among the public about the accessibility of feature films including through periodic announcements on their own and other platforms, highlighting accessible programmes or electronic programme guides, printed programme guides and providing information in publications aimed at persons likely to benefit from accessible films. They shall also create awareness amongst their members to increasingly make films more accessible to the persons with disabilities, thereby

Examples of Accessibility Initiatives

In recent years, several Indian films have incorporated accessibility features to accommodate audiences with hearing and visual impairments. These features include subtitles, audio descriptions and sign language interpretations; here are some notable examples:

- Mumbai Film Festival (MAMI): The MAMI Film Festival has been proactive in integrating accessibility features, such as audio description and subtitles, into its programming. This commitment to inclusivity serves as a model for other film festivals and cinema operators across the country.
- Tumbad: This Marathi film is notable for its inclusion of audio descriptions, making it more accessible to visually impaired audiences. Tumbad exemplifies how mainstream films can integrate accessibility features effectively.
- Shrikant: Another example of a film with strong accessibility features, "Shrikant" includes both subtitles and audio descriptions. This reflects the growing trend towards making Indian cinema more inclusive and demonstrates how accessibility features can be integrated into mainstream productions.

Challenges and Future Directions

Despite these advancements and availability of non-invasive technologies and options, several challenges remain:

- Inconsistent Implementation: While new guidelines and policies have been notified, their implementation is still embryonic. Ensuring quality accessibility features in new films is a matter of concern for the industry as well as for the target audience.
 - Awareness and Training: There is a need for greater awareness and training among filmmakers, cinema operators and the general public regarding the importance and benefits of accessibility features.
 - Funding and Resources: Implementing accessibility features can be costly, and there is a concern among small filmmakers regarding the financial and logistical support. The evolution of accessibility standards for hearing and visually impaired people in Indian cinema shows promising progress, driven by legislative measures, technological advancements and successful case studies. While significant strides have been made, achieving full industry requires ongoing commitment from all stakeholders-government bodies, film producers, cinema operators and advocacy organisations. By continuing to innovate and invest in the technology and with embracing and implementing accessibility features, Indian film can become truly universal medium of enjoyment and engagement to all audiences.

PM's Tour of Singapore and Brunei : Strategic Gains and Key Milestones

for its advanced vocational and professional training programmes, this partnership offers India a valuable opportunity for knowledge transfer. Indian students and professionals stand to benefit from access to world-class educational programmes and skill development platforms in Singapore, enhancing their global employability. This collaboration will help bridge the skills gap, particularly in high-demand areas like AI, data analytics and fintech, making the Indian workforce more competitive in the global market. Moreover, by aligning skill certification standards between the two countries, workers can gain recognition in both jurisdictions, facilitating easier mobility for employment.

MoU on Expanding Collaboration in Health and Medical Education

The third MoU focuses on strengthening cooperation in the critical areas of healthcare, medical education and research. Singapore has expressed a keen interest in working closely with India's healthcare professionals, who are globally recognised for their skills, expertise and dedication. Indian medical professionals, especially nurses, have a stellar reputation for their commitment and competence in patient care. With India providing a large pool of qualified healthcare workers every year, this partnership offers Singapore access to a skilled workforce that can meet its growing healthcare demands.

Nursing, in particular, is poised to become a central pillar of this partnership. Indian nurses are well-known for their rigorous training, compassion and adaptability in diverse healthcare environments. Given the high demand for skilled nurses globally, this collaboration will help Singapore address its nursing shortages while offering Indian nurses opportunities for career advancement and exposure to advanced medical practices.

The two nations also aim to improve cooperation in key areas like healthcare training, medical education and capacity building. Joint research projects, exchange programmes for medical students and professionals and training in advanced medical techniques will help both nations strengthen their healthcare systems. Furthermore, with India's growing pharmaceutical industry and Singapore's focus on healthcare innovation, this partnership could lead to advancements in drug development, clinical trials and healthcare technology.

In the long run, this MoU sets the stage for creating a more resilient and efficient healthcare ecosystem in both countries, one that can not only meet domestic needs but also contribute to global health challenges.

MoU on Strengthening Partnership in Semiconductor Ecosystem

The fourth and the most crucial MoU signed during Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi's visit to Singapore focuses on strengthening cooperation in the semiconductor industry, a sector that is of strategic importance to both nations. As the global demand for semiconductors continues to rise, driven by advancements in industries like automotive, electronics and telecommunications, India and Singapore are poised to play pivotal roles in addressing global supply chain needs.

Singapore boasts an established semiconductor manufacturing ecosystem, recognised as one of the major hubs in the global value chain for semiconductor production. With leading semiconductor companies, advanced manufacturing infrastructure and a skilled workforce, Singapore's expertise in this sector is well acknowledged. On the other hand, India, an emerging player in the global semiconductor arena, has recently placed significant emphasis on building its semiconductor design and manufacturing capabilities. India's ambitious "Semicon India" initiative aims to establish the country as a major semiconductor manufacturing hub, capturing the increasing need for diversified supply chains and self-reliance in critical technologies.

The visiting Indian Prime Minister's tour of the semiconductor facility of AEM Holdings Ltd, a leading provider of semiconductor and electronics test companies to network, showcase their expertise and explore avenues for investment in India's growing semiconductor market.

By fostering this collaboration, both nations aim to create a synergistic relationship where Singapore's advanced manufacturing capabilities complement India's emerging potential in semiconductor design and production. For India, this partnership is a critical step in building a resilient semiconductor supply chain, reducing dependence on imports and positioning itself as a global hub for semiconductor manufacturing. For Singapore, this cooperation presents an opportunity to expand its footprint in the growing Indian market while contributing to the development of the region's semiconductor ecosystem.

The MoU also focuses on developing exchanging views on regional and global issues of mutual interest. Both leaders explored ways to further strengthen bilateral ties.

This marked the first time an Indian head of government visited Brunei with the intent of solidifying bilateral relations. The Indian ethnic community residing in Brunei displayed visible enthusiasm and joy during the visit. Sultan Haji Hassanal Bolkiah, the 29th ruler in his line of succession, extended a warm red-carpet welcome to Prime Minister Shri Modi, despite the potential risk of backlash from India's adversaries.

Brunei, owing to its strategic geographical location, holds significant importance in the region. India has been keen to engage Brunei in space collaboration. The Asia-Pacific Regional Space Agency Forum (APRSARF), a multilateral platform established in 1993, aims to promote space cooperation in the Asia-Pacific. During PM Modi's recent visit, an important Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) on cooperation for the operation of a Telemetry, Tracking and Telecommand Station for Satellites was signed, although Brunei currently lacks an active space programme.

Under the framework of India's Act East Policy, efforts are being made to upgrade its relationship with Brunei. To commemorate the 40th anniversary of diplomatic relations between the two nations, a new chancery was inaugurated at the Indian High Commission, situated near the US Embassy.

PM Modi's visit to Brunei underscores a deeper strategic alignment between the two countries, particularly in the Indo-Pacific context. India's outreach to Brunei is part of a larger effort to enhance ties in the region.

Additionally, a direct flight between Bandar Seri Begawan, the capital of Brunei and Chennai was announced during the visit. Brunei is also a key supplier of crude oil and natural gas to India.

Why Singapore Matters to India?

India and Singapore have long traditions of diplomatic relationship. India was one of the first countries to extend formal recognition just 15 days after Singapore's independence in August 1965. Initially influenced by non-aligned principles, the relationship has since grown into a strong partnership, marked by extensive economic integration, defence collaboration and cultural exchange. Central to this bond is the diplomatic approach both nations take, fostering balanced relationships with multiple countries to ensure stability in the region.

Maritime security and defence cooperation are vital aspects of the partnership, especially given Singapore's strategic location at the Malacca Strait. Joint naval exercises, like the Singapore-India Maritime Bilateral Exercise (SIMBEX), have expanded in scope over the years, evolving from anti-submarine operations to broader naval coordination. In 2023, Singapore and India co-hosted the ASEAN-India Maritime Exercise, further emphasising their joint commitment to regional security. This cooperation extends to agreements allowing India's Navy access to Singapore's facilities, enhancing India's strategic presence in the South China Sea and Indian Ocean.

Singapore's central role in multilateral forums like the ASEAN-India Summit, East Asia Summit (EAS) and ASEAN Regional Forum (ARF) further underscores its importance in India's South-East Asia outreach. Acting as a diplomatic bridge, Singapore helps India engage with ASEAN nations on key issues such as trade, connectivity, maritime security and counter-terrorism. Both countries are also strong advocates of the Indo-Pacific Oceans Initiative (IPOI), upholding international law in sensitive areas like the South China Sea.

Singapore's strategic location along the East-West shipping corridor makes it an ideal partner for India in expanding its economic and trade relations with Southeast Asia. Since signing the Comprehensive Economic Cooperation Agreement (CECA) in 2015, Singapore has become one of India's largest sources of foreign direct investment. Indian startups and tech firms have leveraged Singapore as a base for regional expansion, particularly in the fintech and digital technology sectors. This digital collaboration deepened in 2021 with the linking of India's Unified Payments Interface (UPI) and Singapore's PayNow, facilitating instant cross-border remittances.

In recent years, both nations have prioritised digitalisation and technology as areas of cooperation, aligning Singapore's focus on innovation with India's ambition to become a leading digital economy. Their joint initiatives in blockchain, digital banking and cybersecurity reflect this shared vision.

The COVID-19 pandemic further highlighted the resilience of India-Singapore ties. During India's second wave in 2021, Singapore provided crucial medical supplies, while India distributed vaccines through its Vaccine Maitri initiative. This mutual support laid the foundation for future collaboration in securing resilient supply chains, particularly in critical areas like pharmaceuticals and technology.

Singapore's diplomatic strength and neutral position in South-East Asia have allowed it to maintain balanced relations with global powers, such as the U.S. and China, a strategy that aligns closely with India's global diplomatic approach. The partnership enhances India's ability to navigate regional geopolitics while contributing to regional peace and stability. Strengthening these ties will be essential for advancing India's Act East policy and securing its long-term strategic interests in the Indo-Pacific region.

solutions, highlighted the shared ambitions of both nations in this field. The visit symbolised India's eagerness to collaborate with Singapore to tap into its expertise and expand its nascent semiconductor sector. In a bid to bolster this partnership, PM Modi extended an invitation to Singaporean semiconductor companies to participate in the SEMICON INDIA exhibition, which was held in Greater Noida from 11th to 13th September, 2024.

SEMICON INDIA is a global platform aimed at bringing together key players from the semiconductor industry, including manufacturers, researchers, policymakers and industry leaders, to foster collaboration, discuss emerging trends and explore investment opportunities. The three-day event, which drew over 250 global leaders, focussed on the theme "Shaping the Semiconductor Future" and provided a unique opportunity for Singaporean talent and capacity building in semiconductor technology. Both countries are expected to collaborate on training programmes, research and development and knowledge sharing, allowing India to leverage Singapore's expertise to develop a skilled workforce capable of supporting its semiconductor ambitions. As India gears up to scale its manufacturing capabilities, these efforts will help ensure that both nations remain competitive and at the forefront of the global semiconductor industry.

- All candidates have to qualify each stage to appear for next stage of the recruitment process.
- The candidates qualified in Stage-I will be called for appearing in Written Examinations (Stage-II). The number of candidates to be called for Trade Test (Stage-III) would purely depend on merit in the written examination for which qualifying marks would be 35% for UR, EWS & ESM and 33% for SC/ST/OBC. However, it will not be mandatory to call all the qualified candidates in the Trade Test for the Stage-III. The number of candidates to be called for Stage-III would depend on total number of qualified candidates in the written examination with reference to the number of vacancies as given in each category. Accordingly, out of marks would be prescribed for each category.
- The final merit list would be on the basis of marks obtained by the candidate in Written Examination and Trade Test cumulatively.
- The Medical Examination will be concluded after the preparation of merit list. If a candidate does not qualify in medical examination, his candidature will not be subsequently considered.

With 7 glittering golds, 9 shining silvers, and 13 bronzes, Team India claimed the 18th spot on the medal tally- its best finish ever. And, with these new wins, India's total Paralympic medal count now stands proudly at 60.

From August 28 to September 8, 2024, the world watched as 84 Indian athletes battled it out in 12 events, including three new ones- para cycling, para riding, and blind judo! Here's a breakdown of the nation's trailblazing performance:

Golden Stars of Para Athletics

India bagged 17 medals in para athletics alone, with 4 golds, 6 silvers, and 7 bronzes. Among the highlights was the remarkable debut of Kapil Parmar, who clinched a bronze in blind judo, a new category for India. But let's talk about our golden champions:

<https://telegram.me/MagzNewspaper>

- Sumit Antil: The javelin maestro is back at it! After winning gold at Tokyo 2020, Sumit defended his title in Paris, launching the javelin to a record 70.69 meters. He's now the first Indian to achieve this back-to-back Paralympic gold feat. With gold medals from both the World Para Championship and the 2022 Asian Games, Sumit is unstoppable!

- Navdeep Singh: In a twist of fate, Navdeep, who finished fourth in Tokyo, grabbed silver in Paris with a throw of 47.13 meters. But wait-when the Iranian gold medalist was disqualified, Navdeep got promoted to gold! His persistence has paid off, as he's also a proud bronze medalist at the 2024 World Athletics Championships.

- Praveen Kumar: Praveen soared to new heights- literally-breaking the Asian record with a 2.08 meter jump to clinch gold in Paris. After taking silver in Tokyo, he's now on top of the world, adding this win to his previous Asian Para Games gold and World Para bronze.

- Dharambir: With a club throw of 34.92 meters, Dharambir struck gold in a head-to-head with fellow Indian Pranav Soorma, who had to settle for silver. The club throw, by the way, is the Paralympic equivalent of Olympic hammer throw. Dharambir's impressive resume includes a bronze at the 2024 Para World Championships in Japan.

Silver Lining of Para Athletics

India's silver haul featured athletes who fought neck-and-neck battles coming tantalisingly close to gold.

- Pranav Soorma: After winning gold at the 2023 Asian Games, Pranav had to settle for silver in Paris. But with consistent wins at the Serbia Open in 2023 and 2024, he's proven his mettle in club throw.

- Sachin Khilari: In the shot put, Sachin threw a jaw-dropping 16.32 meters, setting an Asian record. He narrowly missed out on gold by just 0.06 meters! Sachin's two-time world champion status and his Asian Para Games gold speak volumes about his potential.

- Shivraj Kumar: In the high jump, Shivraj cleared 1.85 meters to clinch silver. After securing bronze in Tokyo with a 1.83 meter jump, Shivraj has now taken the performance to new heights.

- Yogesh Khatwani: Though Yogesh's season-best throw earned him silver, he's no stranger to this spot on the podium. Having previously taken silver at Tokyo 2020 and the 2023 Asian Games, Yogesh's consistency and skill remain unmatched.

- Nishad Kumar: Nishad brought home a silver in high jump, clearing 2.04 meters in Paris. Though he lost to an American athlete, Nishad has already secured his place in history with a silver medal at Tokyo 2020 too.

Bronze Medalists of Para Athletics India's Own All-Time Glory

India's bronze medalists in para athletics were the spotlight with their sheer grit and dazzling performances. Let's meet the champions who brought home the bronze!

- Pooja Patel: A double medalist! Pooja became the first Indian to win two medals in track and field athletics, bagging bronze in both the 200m and 100m races. After going medal-less at last year's Asian Games in China, she's back with a vengeance, and now with one more but her medals in her collection.

- Deepthi Jeevaraj: Meet Deepthi, the first low-10 player to win a medal in the Asian table, clocking in at 50.82 seconds. She's always the reigning world record holder and the 2023 Asian Games gold medalist. While she faced fierce competition from Ukrainian and Turkish athletes, Deepthi held her own and added to India's medal haul.

- Manjivrao Thangavelu: A Paralympic legend! Thangavelu has now won medals at three consecutive Paralympics (Rio 2016, Tokyo 2020, and bronze in Paris 2024). This bronze haul cements his place as one of India's greatest para-athletes. Though he lost to his counterpart Shazad Khatir Bis 30m, his legacy remains untouched.

- Bunuar Singh Darj: A comeback story for the aged! Bunuar, once on the brink of retiring due to his disability, hurled the javelin 64.98 meters to win bronze in Paris. He narrowly missed silver, losing to Ajit Singh. Bunuar's journey is nothing short of inspiring, with a world record of 68.00 meters and a gold from the 2023 Para Asian Games in his trophy case.

- Sriram Sharma: Speeding to victory, Sriram clocked a personal best of 28.75 seconds in the women's 200 meters, clocking India's first gold in the event at Paris 2024. With her Gauri Albany Singh by her side, Sriram shattered her past records and raced into the history books.

Three years earlier, he brought home India's first-ever archery medal with a bronze at Tokyo 2020. Reflecting on his win, Harvinder said, "Winning gold for India is a dream come true, but leading my country as the flag bearer at the closing ceremony- now that's something truly magical!"

Charting India's Path to Global Leadership

Highlights from SEMICON India 2024, Asia-Pacific Aviation Conference, and INDUS-X Summit

SPOTLIGHT

Ritesh Kumar

In a rapidly evolving world, India's strategic advancements across critical sectors are drawing global attention. From SEMICON India 2024's focus on semiconductor manufacturing to the 2nd Asia-Pacific Ministerial Conference on Civil Aviation's transformative policies, and the third INDUS-X Summit's defence innovation breakthroughs, these events mark India's assertive strides on the global stage. Each of these events encapsulates India's ambition to not only bolster its domestic capabilities but also contribute to global resilience. This article explores the key outcomes and long-term significance of these three landmark events, each reinforcing India's growing influence in technology, aviation, and defence ecosystems worldwide.

Turning the Chip Game: A Blueprint for Global Supply Chain Resilience

SEMICON India 2024, held in Greater Noida, has emerged as a pivotal moment in India's journey towards becoming a global semiconductor powerhouse. The summit underscored India's ambitions to strengthen its domestic chip-making capabilities, reduce reliance on foreign imports, and create a robust, self-sufficient semiconductor ecosystem. The event, inaugurated by Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi, showcased how India is positioning itself as a vital player in the global supply chain, while also fostering employment and innovation in the semiconductor industry.

Importance of Semiconductors for India's Self-Reliance

At the heart of India's semiconductor ambition is its larger vision of Atmanirbhar Bharat (Self-Reliant India). Semiconductors, the tiny chips that power everything from smartphones to defence systems, are critical for a nation aspiring to become a global technology leader. As Shri Modi eloquently stated during the event, "In the 21st-century Bharat, the chips are never down! Today's Bharat assures the world when the chips are down, you can bet on India!"

This focus on boosting semiconductor production aligns with India's national security and economic priorities. By establishing domestic semiconductor manufacturing capabilities, India aims to safeguard its technological sovereignty and reduce dependence on international suppliers. This effort is crucial for building a resilient tech ecosystem that can withstand global supply chain disruptions.

Creating a New Wave of Employment Opportunities

The semiconductor industry is not just about technological advancement; it is also a major driver of job creation. As India's semiconductor landscape evolves, new factories, research centers, and innovation hubs are being set up, providing high-paying jobs across various domains. The PM, in his speech, highlighted the government's efforts to build a skilled workforce, stating, "We are preparing an 85,000-strong semiconductor workforce of technicians, engineers, and R&D experts." This workforce will not only cater to domestic industries but also contribute to global semiconductor needs.

India's booming electronics market is also poised to grow exponentially, with the Prime Minister setting an ambitious goal of tripling electronics manufacturing to $50 billion in six years. The creation of new jobs in electronics manufacturing, chip design, materials science, and data analytics will give India's talented engineers and innovators a chance to contribute to a dynamic and high-tech industry.

Attracting Global Investment

A key outcome of SEMICON India 2024 was the attraction of significant global investments. Major semiconductor companies from the U.S., Japan, and Europe, including TSMC Semiconductors, INMATA, and AMD, pledged to expand their operations in India. For instance, TSMC Semiconductors committed over $1 billion to double its research and development efforts in the country. Similarly, Micron Technology announced a $2.7 billion testing and packaging unit in Gujarat, which is expected to generate around 5,000 jobs.

These investments are a testament to India's potential as a high-tech manufacturing destination and underscore the international community's confidence in India's semiconductor ambitions. PM Modi's government has allocated $10 billion in incentives to attract semiconductor manufacturers, aiming to rival global chipmaking giants like Taiwan.

Building a Resilient Supply Chain

India's emergence as a global semiconductor hub is also crucial for building supply chain resilience. With global industries grappling with supply chain disruptions due to geopolitical tensions, India is well-positioned to provide an alternative supply source. As part of this effort, India has been chosen as the vice-chair of the Indo-Pacific Economic Framework's Supply Chain Council and is actively collaborating with countries such as Japan, Singapore, and the U.S.

Shri Modi emphasized India's role in the evolving semiconductor landscape, stating that India will soon become a trusted global partner for supplying critical chips. "Our dream is that every device in the world will have an Indian-made chip," he said, reflecting the government's aspiration to establish India as a key player in the global supply chain.

Technological Advancements and Strategic Collaborations

India's foray into advanced technologies such as AI, IoT, 5G and quantum computing is accelerating, and the development of cutting-edge semiconductor technology is essential for these fields. SEMICON India 2024 fostered several strategic partnerships between global semiconductor giants and Indian companies, setting the stage for India to lead in these emerging technologies.

These collaborations also serve as platforms for knowledge transfer, skill development, and innovation. With new research centers and innovation hubs being set up, India's semiconductor eco-system is rapidly evolving to meet both domestic and international demand.

The Road Ahead

With over Rs. 45 lakh crore in investments, including five new semiconductor projects, India is poised to build a robust semiconductor ecosystem that will cater to global needs. The success of this summit lies not only in the discussions and investments but also in the tangible actions taken by both the government and industry leaders. The construction of semiconductor plants in states like Gujarat, Uttar Pradesh, and Assam is already underway, and India's semiconductor strategy is entering Phase 2.0, focusing on scaling up operations and introducing specialised materials to bolster the industry further.

As Shri Modi aptly put it, "India's semiconductor ecosystem is a solution not just for India's challenges but also for global challenges." With a growing workforce, increased foreign investment, and a clear vision for the future, India is well on its way to becoming a trusted global semiconductor hub-one chip at a time.

2nd Asia Pacific Ministerial Conference on Civil Aviation

Delhi Declaration: Paving the Way for India's Aviation Future and Regional Leadership

The adoption of the Delhi Declaration at the 2nd Asia Pacific Ministerial Conference on Civil Aviation marks a pivotal moment for India and the broader Asia-Pacific region. This comprehensive framework seeks to enhance regional cooperation, address emerging challenges, and set the stage for sustainable growth in the civil aviation sector. Hosted by the Ministry of Civil Aviation, Government of India, in collaboration with the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO), the event brought together ministers, policy makers, and aviation leaders from 28 countries, along with 8 international organisations. India's growing influence in the global aviation sector was on full display, as the country showcased its ambitious goals and its commitment to fostering inclusivity, sustainability, and regional integration.

What it Means for India

The Delhi Declaration reflects India's vision of positioning itself as a key player in the global aviation landscape. By adopting this framework, India is committing to an active role in shaping the future of aviation in the Asia-Pacific region and beyond. The declaration underscores a collaborative approach, where nations work together to strengthen aviation infrastructure, enhance safety and security, address environmental concerns, and promote gender inclusivity in the sector.

For India, the implications are significant. The country is not only set to expand its aviation infrastructure with plans for 350-400 airports by 2047, but also aims to become a leader in green aviation and sustainable practices. The Delhi Declaration emphasises India's focus on inclusive growth, ensuring that aviation's benefits reach all segments of society, while also fostering regional connectivity that can spur economic growth and cultural exchange.

India's Aviation Transformation: From Exclusive to Inclusive

In his address at the conference, Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi highlighted India's aviation journey over the last decade. From being an "aviation exclusive" country, where air travel was seen as a luxury for a select few, India has transformed into an "aviation inclusive" nation. This shift is evident in the rapid expansion of the aviation sector, with a significant rise in domestic and international air traffic, the proliferation of low-cost carriers, and infrastructure upgrades across the country.

A noteworthy achievement is India's increasing gender inclusivity in the aviation sector. Currently, 15% of India's pilots are women, far surpassing the global average of 5%. The Prime Minister emphasised this progress and shared the government's intention to further increase the participation of women in aviation through policy support and advisory measures. This inclusivity not only reflects India's commitment to equal opportunity but also positions the country as a model for gender diversity in aviation on the global stage.

International Buddhist Circuit: Connecting People and Prosperity

One of the most innovative and forward-looking proposals from Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi at the conference was the creation of an International Buddhist Circuit. This concept aims to connect holy Buddhist sites across Asia, benefiting travellers, the civil aviation sector, and the economies of the participating countries. India, with its rich Buddhist heritage and historic sites such as Bodhi Gaya and Sarnath, can play a central role in this initiative.

The Buddhist Circuit has the potential to not only boost tourism but also foster cultural exchange and cooperation among Asian countries. It aligns perfectly with the broader goal of regional integration through travel and tourism, connecting people and economies while promoting a shared cultural heritage. For India, this initiative could provide a significant boost to its tourism sector, strengthen diplomatic ties with neighbouring countries, and position the country as a hub for religious tourism.

Sustainability and Green Aviation

A key theme of the Delhi Declaration and the conference as a whole was sustainability. As the aviation sector continues to grow, addressing its environmental impact has become increasingly important. Civil Aviation Minister Shri Ram Mohan Naidu highlighted India's commitment to sustainability, evidenced by initiatives such as the 'Ek Pad Ma Ka Naam' campaign, which saw the planting of 80,000 saplings to commemorate ICAO's 10th anniversary. This symbolic gesture reflects India's broader environmental goals and its commitment to reducing the aviation sector's carbon footprint.

India's vision for green aviation includes the adoption of new technologies and practices that reduce emissions, enhance fuel efficiency, and promote the use of alternative fuels. As the global aviation sector moves toward a greener future, India is positioning itself as a leader in sustainable aviation practices, working closely with international organisations like ICAO to achieve these goals.

India's Role in Regional and Global Aviation

The Delhi Declaration not only cements India's leadership in regional aviation but also underscores its global ambitions. During the conference, Mr. Salvatore Scacchiano, President of the ICAO Council, praised India's commitment to enhancing aviation safety and security, emphasising the importance of not becoming complacent in the face of positive statistics. Safety, security, and infrastructure development were key topics of discussion throughout the conference, with the adoption of policies that will help the region meet its growing aviation demands.

India's role as a global leader was also evident in its efforts during the COVID-19 pandemic, when the country led vaccine distribution across Asia and the Pacific, exemplifying its commitment to the ICAO's principle of 'One World, One Planet, One Future, One Family'. India's active participation in global collaborative efforts, particularly during times of crisis, further strengthens its position as a responsible and forward-thinking nation in the international aviation community.

A Vision for 2047

Looking ahead to 2047, when India celebrates 100 years of independence, the nation has set ambitious goals for its aviation sector. The Delhi Declaration will serve as a guiding framework for achieving these targets, including the development of 350-400 airports, the promotion of green aviation, and the creation of inclusive and sustainable growth opportunities. The government's vision is clear: India will be a key player in the global aviation sector, not just in terms of infrastructure and technology but also in its commitment to safety, security, and sustainability.

Third INDUS-X Summit: India and U.S. Strengthen Defence Innovation Ties at INDUS-X Summit

In a significant step towards enhancing defence collaboration, the third edition of the INDUS-X Summit concluded in California, marking a major milestone in the creation of a joint defence innovation ecosystem between India and the United States. Co-organised by the U.S.-India Strategic Partnership Forum (USISPF) and Stanford University, the summit was held on 9th to 10th September, 2024, and saw key advancements in defence technology cooperation between the two nations.

A key highlight of the summit was the signing of a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) between India's Innovations for Defence Excellence (IDEX) and the U.S. Defence Innovation Unit (DIU), a division of the U.S. Department of Defence. This agreement aims to deepen cooperation in defence innovation, facilitating partnerships in industry, research, and investment. It also signals a growing focus on the development of next-generation technologies through joint collaboration.

Advancing the Defence Innovation Ecosystem

The INDUS-X Summit, launched in June 2023 during Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi's state visit to the United States, is an initiative to foster innovation in defence technology through collaboration between India and the U.S. Since its inception, INDUS-X has achieved several significant milestones, including the creation of an official platform for start-ups and MSMEs to showcase their cutting-edge technologies.

The summit included the announcement of a new INDUS-X Challenge, the release of the INDUS-X Impact Report, and the launch of a dedicated webpage on the IDEX and DIU websites. These steps are expected to strengthen the defence supply chain, create more opportunities for funding defence innovations, and build the capacity of Indian start-ups to scale their solutions for global defence challenges.

Strengthening Strategic Ties

For India, the collaboration with the U.S. through INDUS-X is not only a pathway to technological advancement but

Engineering Careers in India's Semiconductor Revolution ...Electronics Engineering

As the backbone of the semiconductor industry, electronics engineers are involved in almost every stage of the semiconductor lifecycle. Their primary focus lies in designing, developing and refining semiconductor devices such as transistors, diodes and integrated circuits (ICs), which serve as the building blocks for modern electronic systems. These engineers are responsible for transforming theoretical concepts into tangible components that power everything from smartphones to spacecraft.

Electronics engineers collaborate with process engineers to fabricate these designs into physical chips using precise methods like photolithography and doping. Once fabricated, they rigorously test the chips for speed, power efficiency and functionality, ensuring they meet performance standards. Additionally, engineers continuously optimize chip designs to make them smaller, faster and more efficient. With emerging technologies like AI, 5G and quantum computing, they are also pushing the boundaries by developing semiconductors tailored to cutting-edge applications, such as low-power AI chips and high-speed communication ICs.

Software Engineering

Software engineers play a crucial role in the semiconductor industry by developing tools and systems that support chip design, simulation and production. Their work ensures efficient and precise manufacturing, while also enhancing the performance of semiconductor-based technologies.

They create Electronic Design Automation (EDA) tools for designing complex semiconductor devices, automate design, testing and verification processes and develop simulation software for virtual testing of chips. Here are the top 5 EDA tools in VLSI design:

- Cadence Virtuoso - A leading tool for custom analog and mixed-signal IC design with advanced simulation and layout features.
- Synopsys Design Compiler - Popular for RTL synthesis and timing optimization, translating high-level RTL code into gate-level netlists.
- Mentor Graphics (Siemens EDA) Calibre - Industry standard for physical verification, DRC and LVS checks, ensuring design accuracy.
- Ansys HFSS - Essential for electromagnetic field simulation, widely used for RF, high-frequency and signal integrity analysis.
- Xilinx Vivado - Best suited for FPGA design, offering integrated synthesis, simulation and timing analysis for digital systems.

These tools streamline various aspects of VLSI design, from synthesis to verification and layout.

Emerging trends include leveraging AI and machine learning to optimize chip architectures, reduce power consumption and enhance performance, enabling the development of more efficient and powerful semiconductor devices.

Computer Engineering

Computer engineers are central to advancing semiconductor technology, working on both hardware and software aspects of chip design. Their contributions span microprocessors, memory systems and specialised computing devices, driving improvements in computing power and efficiency.

These engineers design the micro-architecture of processors, organising functional units to optimise speed, efficiency and power consumption. They also engage in hardware-software co-design, developing custom hardware and software frameworks for applications like machine learning. Computer engineers focus on embedded systems, creating chips for specific tasks in devices such as smartphones and medical equipment and on digital logic design, optimising circuits for accurate and high-speed computations. Additionally, they develop firmware that enables hardware to communicate with higher-level software, ensuring smooth functionality across devices.

Computer engineers are exploring advanced chip designs, like neuromorphic and quantum processors, to revolutionise computing capabilities and support edge computing with low-power, real-time processing.

Materials Science and Engineering

Materials scientists play a pivotal role in driving innovation by focusing on the materials that form the backbone of semiconductor devices. They delve into the atomic and molecular structures of materials like silicon, gallium arsenide and newer alternatives to optimise their properties for better electrical conduction, heat dissipation and mechanical strength. Their work involves exploring and developing advanced materials such as gallium nitride (GaN) and silicon carbide (SiC), which offer superior performance for high-frequency and power applications. They also work on enhancing the thermal and electrical conductivity of these materials to mitigate heat buildup and improve device efficiency. They ensure that semiconductor materials have the mechanical resilience needed for devices used in extreme environments, such as aerospace or automotive applications, by focusing on their ability to withstand temperature extremes, vibrations and mechanical stresses.

Emerging trends highlight materials science's role in groundbreaking areas such as flexible electronics, which leverage organic semiconductors for bendable devices and quantum materials that could revolutionise quantum computing. Materials scientists are also investigating environmentally sustainable materials to meet the growing demand for eco-friendly electronics.

Chemical Engineering

Chemical engineers play a vital role in semiconductor manufacturing, focusing on processes like photolithography, etching, doping and Chemical Vapor Deposition (CVD). They optimise the use of light-sensitive chemicals (photoresists) to etch intricate circuit patterns onto wafers, ensuring precision for component miniaturisation. In doping, they control the introduction of impurities to alter electrical properties, while in CVD, they help deposit thin material layers on wafers with high uniformity.

They also maintain strict cleanroom standards to prevent contamination, ensuring high-quality production.

As sustainability becomes a growing priority in the semiconductor industry, chemical engineers are leading efforts to develop eco-friendly practices. One major trend is the reduction of chemical waste through the use of greener etching and deposition techniques, which minimise harmful by-products. There is also a focus on improving energy efficiency in manufacturing processes, reducing overall carbon footprints. Additionally, engineers are exploring alternatives to hazardous materials, opting for less toxic chemicals in production. These innovations not only enhance environmental sustainability but also align with industry goals to reduce costs and comply with stricter regulations.

Optical Engineering

Optical engineers bridge photonics and semiconductor technologies, focusing on devices that rely on light, including lasers, LEDs and optical sensors. Their work is critical for both semiconductor manufacturing and advanced communication and imaging systems.

In semiconductor fabrication, optical engineers design and refine photolithography systems that project patterns onto wafers with extreme precision, facilitating the creation of complex circuits. They also develop optical interconnects that use light for faster and more energy-efficient data transfer, essential for high-performance computing. Their contributions extend to optoelectronic devices for fiber optic communication systems and semiconductor-based sensors for imaging technologies.

Emerging trends include the integration of photonic and electronic circuits on the same chip through silicon photonics, promising advancements in data communication and processing, particularly in AI and quantum computing applications.

Mechanical Engineering

Mechanical engineers focus on designing, maintaining and optimising the machinery and systems essential for semiconductor production. Their expertise ensures that semiconductor devices operate reliably and efficiently, especially as they become smaller and more complex.

Mechanical engineers are responsible for designing the equipment used in semiconductor fabrication plants and to ensure that these systems function with extreme precision and reliability. As devices generate more heat, engineers develop innovative cooling solutions, such as heat sinks and liquid cooling systems, to maintain optimal temperatures and prevent overheating. They also design physical packages to encase semiconductor chips, protecting them from damage, contamination and thermal stress while ensuring reliable electrical connections.

Emerging trends in mechanical engineering include exploring new materials and techniques for chip packaging to enhance durability and thermal performance. Engineers are also contributing to the development of flexible and wearable electronics, areas that demand innovative mechanical solutions.

Automation and Robotics Engineering

Automation and robotics engineers are vital to the highly automated semiconductor manufacturing process. They design, implement and maintain robotic systems that handle wafers, manage quality control and optimise production lines.

These engineers develop robots for precise wafer handling, ensuring minimal contamination and breakage. They also implement robotic systems with advanced sensors for defect inspection, ensuring that only high-quality chips proceed through production. Automation engineers design fully automated production lines, integrating robots, conveyors and control systems for efficiency. They also focus on maintaining and troubleshooting robotic systems to minimise downtime.

Emerging trends involve integrating AI and machine learning into automation systems, allowing robots to self-optimize and increase efficiency. Collaborative robots (cobots) are also being developed to work alongside humans, enhancing flexibility in semiconductor labs.

Thermal Engineering

Thermal engineers address the critical challenge of heat management in increasingly powerful and compact semiconductor devices. Their role is essential for designing systems that effectively dissipate heat, ensuring that devices operate within safe temperature ranges.

They design heat sinks with advanced structures to maximise thermal conductivity and develop cooling systems, such as liquid and thermoelectric cooling, to manage heat in high-performance computing environments. Engineers also work on Thermal Interface Materials (TIMs) to improve heat transfer between devices and heat sinks. Thermal simulators help identify potential hotspots and guide cooling solution designs.

Emerging trends include exploring new materials and techniques, such as graphene-based thermal interfaces and phase-change materials, to enhance thermal performance while maintaining device size and power efficiency.

BEST ENTRY FOR

ISSUE DATED

31 August - 6 September 2024

Q. The RBI has recently increased the Unified Payments Interface transaction (UPI) limit from Rs 1 Lakh to Rs 5 Lakh Per Transaction. How do you think this move will benefit users? Share your views with us.

Kazabikha Pakira, Hooghly, West Bengal

The recent decision by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) to increase the Unified Payments

Interface (UPI) transaction limit from Rs 1 lakh to Rs 5 lakh per transaction is a significant step forward for digital payments in India. Here's how this move can benefit users:

The RBI's decision to increase the UPI transaction limit from Rs 1 lakh to Rs 5 lakh per transaction is a significant boost for digital payments in India. This move provides users with greater flexibility for handling high-value transactions. Earlier, users had to split large payments into multiple transactions, which was inconvenient. Now, with a single transaction handling up to Rs 5 lakh, the process is much more streamlined.

For businesses, especially SMEs, this change allows for easier, faster, and more cost-effective payments, reducing their reliance on traditional banking methods. The higher limit also supports sectors like real estate, automobiles, and luxury goods, where large payments are common, further promoting the adoption of UPI in these areas.

Moreover, the increased limit enhances user confidence in UPI's robustness and security, encouraging wider adoption among those previously hesitant to use digital payments. This step aligns with the broader goal of promoting a cashless economy, making digital transactions more accessible and convenient for everyone. By enabling larger transactions around the clock, the RBI is making it easier for users to manage their finances efficiently, contributing to the growth of the digital payments ecosystem in India.
